Looking for fresh, locally sourced food you can feel good about serving your

405 HIGH St #1 Holbrook, NY Dave Jordan Class of '75

We're grateful to Harborfields alumnus Dave Jordan ('75) and Square Head Brewery in Holbrook for supporting our 50th Reunion celebration.

If you're arriving early or extending your stay on Long Island, consider spending part of your weekend at Square Head Brewery. In addition to Dave's craft beer offerings, the brewery hosts a lively outdoor weekend market featuring food trucks, local artisans, specialty vendors, and a variety of unique products that reflect New York's evolving small-business landscape.

It's a fun opportunity to reconnect with fellow alumni, enjoy great food and beverages, and experience one of Long Island's more eclectic weekend destinations.

For those looking to sample some of New York's newest legal offerings while visiting, the market provides a convenient way to explore local vendors and products without the hassle of packing or transporting anything during your travels. Whether you're curious about CBD products, interested in browsing the latest offerings, or simply looking to take the edge off a busy reunion weekend, you'll find plenty to explore.

We encourage you to stop by, support a fellow Harborfields alumnus, and enjoy everything this unique destination has to offer.

Farms, a small organic farm in East Islip dedicated to growing non-GMO, organically raised produce you can trust.

In addition to seasonal fruits and vegetables, OT Farms offers a unique Clean Meat & Poultry Co-Op featuring an impressive selection of farm-fresh products, including venison sausage, elk sirloin steaks, Amish-raised chicken, quail eggs, raw honey, and more. Everything is carefully sourced and delivered fresh on designated pickup days.

From May through October, OT Farms also offers a popular CSA

(Community Supported Agriculture) Program. Members receive a generous weekly box filled with the freshest in-season produce available, allowing families to enjoy the best flavors each harvest has to offer while supporting local agriculture.

Whether you're looking to eat healthier, support local farmers, or simply enjoy exceptional farm-fresh food, OT Farms is worth a visit. The farm is open daily from the first day of Spring through Thanksgiving Eve, from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. — including weekends, holidays, rain or shine. In addition to its farm-fresh offerings, Mike hosts seasonal events and cooking classes throughout the year, providing visitors with unique opportunities to learn, connect, and celebrate local food. Visit the website for a complete schedule of upcoming events, classes, and special farm activities.

To learn more about OT Farms, place an order, or inquire about CSA memberships and Co-Op offerings,

We're proud to spotlight Harborfields alumnus Mike Messina, whose commitment to quality food, sustainable farming, and community continues to make a positive impact across Long Island. →
